

Instructional Design for Multicultural Audiences™

Instructional Design for Multicultural Audiences™ is a 2-day workshop that empowers instructional designers to design and create culturally-relevant learning. Highly practical, this workshop explores the 4 key aspects of contextualization and then applies them directly to current learning and development programs.

Duration: 2 days

Target Audience:

Instructional designers responsible for the creation of classroom and e-learning programs destined for international, multicultural, or multilingual audiences.

Objectives:

- Identify types of training and training components that require contextualization.
- Explore culture and its impact on learning and development.
- Explore options for contextualizing each piece of a successful program.
- Define a contextualization process appropriate to your organization.
- Fully apply the key concepts from this workshop to a current program at your organization.

It's a multi-cultural world...
Are You Ready?™